

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

After recording of video data is programmed, it is determined, during the activation of a task of executing the programmed recording, whether or not a recording-destination drive included in a plurality of recording drives is being accessed by another task of transferring or copying recorded data. If the recording-destination drive is being accessed by the another task, the another task accessing the recording-destination drive is interrupted, and the programmed recording is executed.